

Contents

FEBRUARY 2010

08 THE FREEDOM OF FORGIVENESS

MAKING PEACE AND MOVING ON

You may find it hard to forgive and forget, but learn to forgive and you'll wave farewell to a whole host of negative emotions

By Anne Dempsey

16 TALKING FAITH TO FAITH

He's gone from sports reporting to soul searching and, since the global success of Tuesdays With Morrie, his books have inspired millions. Mitch Albom explains the unusual background to his latest literary offering

By Sue Leonard

16

18 GETTING LOST IN LENT

Struggling through Lent, this woman allowed herself to get lost—and found—in the season

By Judi M. Bailey

22 DON'T PUT LIMITS ON FORGIVENESS

With the practice of confession in serious decline, insights from outside mainstream Catholicism could encourage penitents and confessors to approach the sacrament with a fresh perspective

By Paddy O'Meara

28 A MOTHER'S LAST WISH

IN SEARCH OF SANCTUARY

The reconciliation sought by one woman in the final days of her life shows that the need to resolve 'unfinished business' is a powerful one for many terminally ill patients

By Sr Helen Culhane

30 THE WILL TO FORGIVE

Forgiveness is not always simple or straightforward and it's wrong to expect that it should be

By Gaby Roughneen

32 LESSONS IN FORGIVENESS

St Stephen, St John Gualbert, and St Gerard Majella are three saints who offer lessons in perfect forgiveness

By Thomas J. Craughwell

36 THE UNKINDEST CUT

A flippant remark can seem harmless at the time, but, as this author discovered, words have the power to inflict deep wounds that may never heal

By Mary Shiel

40 A BETTER BET

When Arthur McCluskey found himself bound for Medjugorje with a group of pilgrims, his only thought was "how can I get out of this?" Little did he know his life was about to be transformed

By Gillian McGonnell

08

36